

Apprenticeship Management System (AMS)

Our Mission

To provide a shared system across multiple provinces that promotes effective apprenticeship business practices.

Our Vision

AMS will improve the success and outcomes of apprenticeship clients by providing a modernized technology solution that empowers all apprenticeship stakeholders.

What is AMS and why is it being developed?

The Apprenticeship Management System (AMS) is an online apprenticeship system that will improve access to information and provide efficiencies for apprentices, journeypersons, employers, training providers and government apprenticeship management staff.

AMS is being developed by the provinces of Nova Scotia, Newfoundland and Labrador, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island, Manitoba and Saskatchewan, and is part of a major initiative to maximize similarities among apprenticeship authorities and modernize apprenticeship management services.

As this partnership has been identified as a national best practice, other provinces may join in the future.

What are the Benefits of AMS?

- AMS supports modern apprenticeship management processes and client self-serve tools
- Maximize efficiencies for apprenticeship clients and improve service delivery
- Empower apprentices / improve communication between apprentice and employers
- Improved ability to plan and view apprenticeship training opportunities

Where can I get more information?

- Prior to launching AMS, government apprenticeship management staff will be reaching out to multiple stakeholder groups to share more information about the processes and services the new system will support.
- In addition, training tools will be developed for apprentices, journeypersons, training providers, employers and agency staff.
